Utility facility strike reporting

R.C. 3781.271 and 4913.01

Requires reports of certain underground utility facility damage to be made available to the Public Utilities Commission upon request.

Specifies that information contained in such reports is to be held as confidential, except when disclosed in relation to certain reports made to the Commission, when disclosed as testimony in any court or proceeding of the public utilities commission, or when requested by the underground technical committee as part of a report on requests made by aggrieved persons in relation to the enforcement of the Underground Utility Facility Protection Law.

Specifies that the definition of "aggrieved person," for purposes of enforcing the requirements of the Underground Utility Facility Protection Law, includes any person when the alleged compliance failure is a failure to report damage to underground utility facilities, as required under the bill.

SYNOPSIS

Protection service limited basis participants and non-members

R.C. 153.64 and 3781.271

Eliminates, with respect to public improvements, the requirement for notice to owners of underground utility facilities who are non members of a protection service, thereby making the law governing underground utility facilities protection for public improvements consistent with the bill's changes to the one-call utility protection service, which changes remove the option for limited-basis participants.

Eliminates, with respect to the one-call utility protection service law, obsolete references to limited-basis participants in order to be consistent with the bill's changes to that law, which changes remove the option for limited-basis participants.
